"Dr. Saris, do we eat lunch like this everyday?"

The four years of your stay at Hahnemann have been among the most momentous in modern history. You have witnessed the winding down of the Viet Nam war, Red China's admission to the United Nations, Watergate, the resignation of a Vice President, another Arab-Israeli war and an energy crisis. America has periodically staggered and then risen to meet each overwhelming challenge.

Hahnemann Medical College also has been faced with challenges. Challenges which are being met. There has been much criticism of American medicine, the education of its physicians and the quality and cost of medical care. At Hahnemann, you have seen the steady improvement of our faculty and staff. Their response to the health care crisis through community involvement, regionalized medical programs and health maintenance organizations are meeting the challenges. You have seen the demolition of the Race Street Out-Patient Clinic and the construction of a new emergency accessway as the precursors of a new hospital.

Your class has met the challenge by scoring the highest in Hahnemann's history. The dynamic Core Curriculum introduced in your freshman year allowed you the freedom and experience of more clinical practice and an opportunity for earlier specialization in an area of your choice. You were the first class to benefit from the new medical college building which provided you with a better physical environment for your education. Your four years here have equipped you to strengthen Hahnemann's tradition of excellence. Through your word and deed you will bring honor to your alma mater.

God bless you all and God speed.

VICE PRESIDENT AND DEAN

Dear Doctor:

The sheepskin in your hand, the many obstacles now passed and faded away, may well make you imagine that you are at the end of the rough and thorny road. True, you have achieved the requisite papers and stature to allow you to practice medicine. However, the truth is that you are only at the beginning.

In the profession of medicine there are no finishes — there are only beginnings. No cure is ever complete or perfect; no disease is ever absolutely eradicated; and, indeed, the favorable result in one direction may result in unfortunate complications in other organ systems. Yet, as the philosopher said, "There is a cure for everything except death." One strives for the best at each occasion, and to the degree that success is achieved, that is an accomplishment. But this is not an end unto itself. One must begin again and again as often as is necessary.

That is why physicians are often men who perform well in many fields. They have learned to start, to plunge, to fight to get results despite the obstacles, and they never accept defeat. In other words, they refuse to end any problem until a degree of perfection is achieved. This setting of the thermostat of quality at such a high level is another characteristic of the medical profession. Perhaps, that is the result of making it so difficult to get into medicine. This strong, competitive spirit carries on into later life.

Changing times and customs, different requirements of health care and delivery, do not worry me. As long as the physician is of high quality, all will be well. The danger of dilution of medical education is real, but I am convinced that we are at the low point of the curve in this area, and present liberalization trends will tend to become more restrictive in the future.

Each one of you will, I am sure, fulfill a maximum potential. Many will be surprised at the directions different environments and opportunities will lead them. But having learned to make beginnings, this will not deter them. I can only wish you happy beginnings and no endings in your endeavors.

To the Graduating Class:

My sincere congratulations on your graduation from medical school. I know, upon your graduation, that you have attained a great degree of medical knowledge and clinical skills. Most of all, I hope that you take with you new and improved attitudes.

Attitudes are preformed responses to situations. They are an essential part of personality, and, to my non-psychiatric thinking, are the most alterable part. Attitudes can be examined; they can be changed; and they are highly detectable by others.

I urge that, as you leave Hahnemann and progress through life, you periodically review your attitudes to keep them reasonable, flexible and acceptable. Acceptable attitudes toward situations and your fellow men will go a long way towards assuring a smooth road to the success you are already approaching. We will miss you and your class at Hahnemann. God speed and good attitude.

HISTORY OF PRESENT ILLNESS

This is the final Hahnemann Hospital admission for this group of 120 men and women who were in their normal state of mental health until September, 1970 at which time they first entered the "hallowed" halls of Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital. During the four years that followed there has been a progressive alteration of this state, which some people view as being for the better and others, for the worse.

Initially, the illness developed with the signs and symptoms of traumatized acoustic division of the eighth cranial nerve, gluteal denervation and bloodshot eyes secondary to prolonged internment and sensory perversions in classrooms A, B and C. The early symptoms were exacerbated by a deluge of demoralizing subjects which included anatomy, biochemistry, biometrics, microbiology, etc., etc., etc.

In any event, the change has taken place and this book will attempt to chronicle that progression.

In regard to measures metric,
I feel things are getting hectic,
Ms. Stovall can get a book,
The price is free and she can look,
At men clad just in under togs,
In Sears and Roebuck catalogs.
Let's stop making all this noise,

I prefer the metric bunnies,
Especially when they're Playboy bunnies,
Now I'm feeling pretty glib,
I've had my fun with womens' lib.

Second Year

As core medical students, the massive indoctrination techniques of the first year were continued by the clinical staff. We were subjected to endless rounds supplemented by thirty page histories and physicals, full time employment as leeches, retraction specialists, impaction extraction teams, lab result getters and general shadows, ghosts and phantoms. Physical health declined due to long hours, hikes across Vine Street for fancy accommodations and exposure to a variety of indigenous life forms.

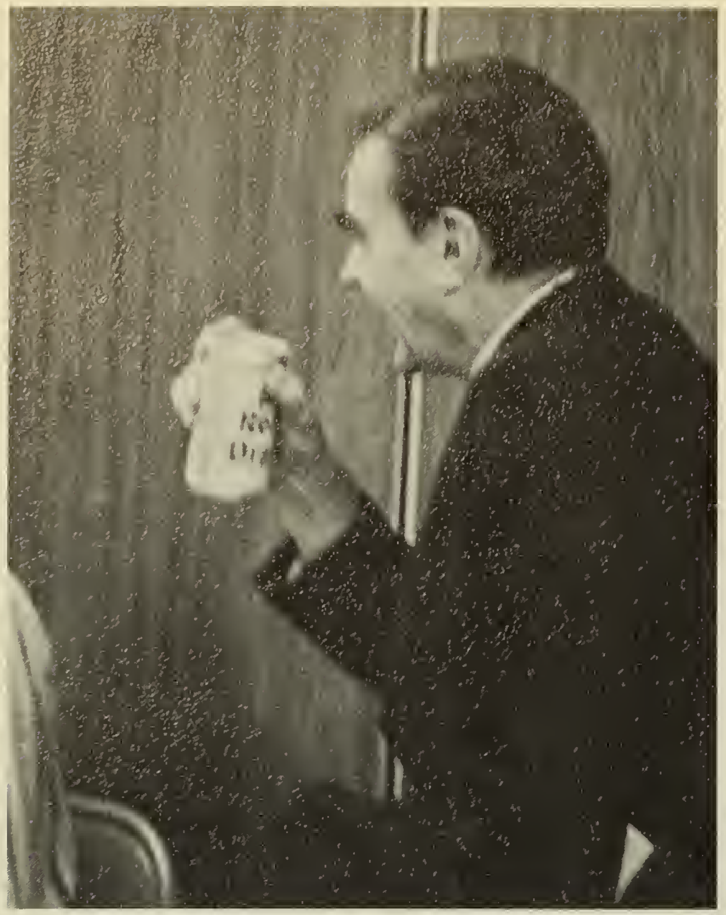
"Repetition is the key to learning," or so they say. Intense heat coupled with frigid cold, concrete dust and the call of "Boys and girls" bring to mind a 24 weeks that have been inscribed forever in 300 pages of note-takers copy. Frequent communiques between the high officials and the lowly students with threats of academic thunderbolts sent many a trembling student scurrying to YE OLD LOGAN INN. Many a brilliant academician would ponder for hours the question of which end of classroom D was the front and which was the rear. Also, the question of whether one could do a cytological smear of belly button lint was debated. However, in the final analysis, the real question is who was more relieved to have survived the Junior year — the students or the faculty.



It's the real thing.

Fourth Year

Vacations, exotic rotations, PGH and a host of new and different experiences lay outstretched before us. The students were tracked and untracked — some derailed and others railroaded in the process.

Being a senior had its advantages — shorter H&P's, more willing nurses, sophomores to do the scut work and the realization that this was indeed our last year.

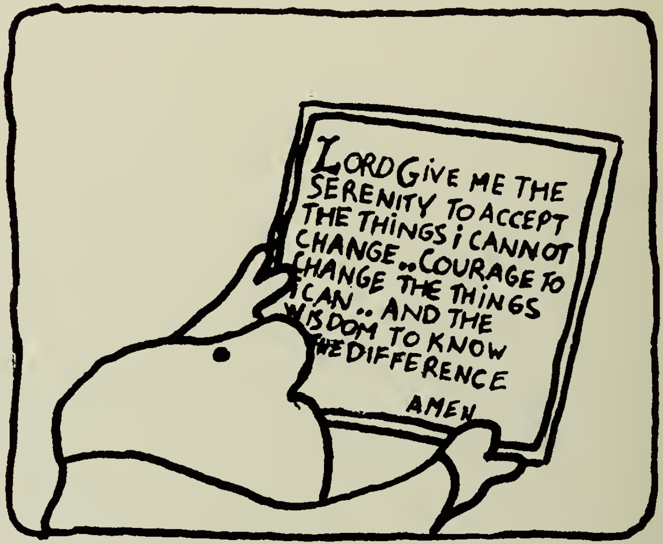
An Invitation . . . And A Thought

We ask you, at this juncture, to pause and take time to assess what has passed and what will come. In seventy odd pages we have tried to depict the highlights (and sometimes the lowlights) of the past four years. These years have been something special to us, and we hope that we have done them justice. Special, to us, includes both the good and the not so good, the profound and the lighthearted and, finally, the joys and also the sorrows. At the same time, we hope that no one portrayed in the pages of this volume has taken offense at such portrayal, for we have attempted to act with the best intentions.

Our four years at Hahnemann have taught us much — much book learning and much that can never be inscribed on such a physical medium as paper. The four years past, at times, have seemed to drag on forever, but, in looking forward, they are just a small, though important, part of our total existance. We hope that we have learned all that we could, but, also, we hope that we have taught something, for this is, we believe, the true purpose of education.

In any event, the time has come for us to leave this place. It is our hope that this book will provide all who glance through it a remembrance of our passage — a remembrance of the good — for in the pages to come are shown those who have now graduated.



LORD GIVE ME THE SERENITY TO ACCEPT THE THINGS I CANNOT CHANGE.. COURAGE TO CHANGE THE THINGS I CAN.. AND THE WISDOM TO KNOW THE DIFFERENCE
AMEN

MONMOUTH MEDICAL CENTER

Long Branch, New Jersey

Train at Sinai – Live in Baltimore

For 107 years, Sinai Hospital of Baltimore has been dedicated to three institutional goals: patient care, education and research. During that period Sinai has trained thousands of graduate physicians.

Located on the border between Baltimore City and Baltimore County, the Hospital is on a tree lined campus of 50 acres. Ideal for commuting to and from downtown Baltimore, members of the House Staff enjoy the city's many cultural advantages. Commuting is easy from suburbs where lovely apartments are readily available. The Hospital's location is also convenient for day and weekend trips to Washington, Philadelphia or to the surrounding countryside.

Sinai has 500 beds complemented by model Rehabilitation and Psychiatry centers. 300 patients enter the Emergency and Ambulatory Services daily. Active treatment programs for drug addiction and alcoholism are conducted by the Departments of Community Medicine and Psychiatry. Constructed in 1959, the modern plant and facilities have been regularly modified to provide excellent diagnostic and therapeutic units.

A highly competent attending staff shares with the House Staff responsibilities for the provision of care for a catchment area of 250,000 persons who comprise a mix of races and socio-economic strata. Sinai has thirteen Chiefs of Service charged with the education and training of the house staff and maintaining the highest standards of care in their specialties.

Chiefs of Service hold teaching positions at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine or the University of Maryland School of Medicine. Members of the attending staff serve in prominent teaching positions at both universities. About 100 medical students receive training at Sinai during each academic year.

DEPARTMENT OF SURGERY

"Medicine is a science whose progress is announced in medical journals but is consolidated only in books. For the young physicians, the medical book is a guarantee of the classic solidity of his profession, just as for the aging practitioner it is the companion whose wisdom has grown along with his own through the years." Dr. Felix Marti-Ibanez

We would be happy to continue as your supplier of medical books.
Our best wishes for a successful and properous future.
